

Know Your State's Abortion Laws

A Guide for Medical Professionals

LOUISIANA

Since Roe v. Wade was overturned in June 2022, medical providers across the country have struggled to understand their state's abortion laws, which contain undefined terms and non-medical language.

Fear and confusion throughout the medical community has led some hospitals to adopt policies that are overly strict or burdensome, causing patients to be denied care in emergencies. While the law remains in flux and some questions have no clear answers, this document aims to provide clarification, where possible, of what conduct is still permitted in your state. Know what your state's law does and does not require, so you can advocate for yourself and your patients.

Key Takeaways

Providing contraception, including emergency contraception, is legal.

Providing medical care for ectopic pregnancies and pregnancies with no cardiac activity is legal.

Providing information about how to obtain a legal abortion in another state is legal.

Abortion is prohibited under Louisiana law unless:

(1) abortion is necessary to “prevent the death” of the patient or to prevent “the serious, permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ,” or

(2) the pregnancy is “medically futile,” meaning the fetus has a condition “incompatible with sustaining life after birth.”

Litigation of the constitutionality of the bans is ongoing.

Definition of Abortion & Contraception

ABORTION

Louisiana law defines abortion as “the performance of any act with the intent to terminate a clinically diagnosable pregnancy with knowledge that the termination by those means will, with reasonable likelihood, cause the death of the unborn child.”¹ However, several procedures that may be considered “an abortion” in the medical community are not abortions under Louisiana abortion laws: (1) “removal of a dead unborn child” or miscarriage management; (2) “removal of an ectopic pregnancy”; (3) abortions to prevent death or “serious, permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ;” and (4) removal of a “medically futile” pregnancy. The “Exceptions to Abortion Bans” section below contain additional information on these categories.

With respect to self-managed abortion, it is legal for providers to give medical care to a pregnant person who has initiated or recently completed a self-managed abortion provided there is no embryonic or fetal cardiac activity or the patient qualifies under one of the exceptions to Louisiana’s bans (see below). A pregnant person cannot be convicted under Louisiana’s abortion ban for self-managing their abortion because the state’s criminal abortion ban explicitly exempts pregnant people from liability.²

CONTRACEPTION

Louisiana law permits the provision or use of any contraceptives, such as intrauterine devices, or emergency contraceptives, such as Plan B. Contraceptives are defined as “any device, measure, drug, chemical, or product, including single-ingredient levonorgestrel, that has been approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration for the purpose of preventing pregnancy and is intended to be administered prior to the time when a clinically diagnosable pregnancy can be determined.”³ Emergency contraceptive is defined as a “drug, chemical, or product, including but not limited to single-ingredient levonorgestrel or ulipristal, that has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration designed or intended to be taken after sexual intercourse but prior to the time when a clinically diagnosable pregnancy can be determined.”⁴ Louisiana law specifies that the definition of “abortion-inducing drug” does not include contraceptives or emergency contraceptives, and that the language in Louisiana’s abortion bans is not intended to apply to the sale and use of contraceptives or emergency contraceptives for the purposes of contraception.⁵

Abortion Bans

2022 Trigger Bans: Abortion—as defined above—is unlawful under Louisiana law at any gestational age.⁶ State law prohibits both providing a pregnant person with abortion medications and conducting any procedure upon a pregnant person with the intent of causing an abortion.⁷ All criminal and civil penalties are aimed at those providing or aiding in abortions, and abortion-seekers are generally excluded from liability.⁸ Two total trigger bans went into effect in 2022. As of August 2023, there is an ongoing legal challenge to Louisiana’s abortion laws in state court, but the laws are in effect while the case is litigated.⁹

The penalties for violating Louisiana’s 2022 total abortion bans are: (1) criminal: violation of the statutes can result in imprisonment for one to ten years and a fine of $10,000 to $100,000;¹⁰ (2) professional: violation of the statutes provides a basis for professional disciplinary action,¹¹ including but not limited to revocation of a license;¹² and (3) civil: violation of the statutes provides a basis for a civil malpractice action brought by the patient; for recovery by the patient for the death of the “unborn child,” whether or not the fetus was viable at the time the abortion was performed; and for state officials to obtain a writ of injunction.¹³

Louisiana institutes harsher criminal penalties for “late term abortions,” defined as an abortion performed when the gestational age of the fetus is fifteen weeks or more.¹⁴ Penalties for performing a “late term abortion” include imprisonment for one to fifteen years and a fine of $20,000 to $200,000. The professional and civil penalties remain the same.

2006 Trigger Ban: Louisiana has another total criminal abortion ban that may be in effect. This ban provides that “no person may knowingly administer to, prescribe for, or procure for, or sell to any pregnant woman any medicine, drug, or other substance” or “knowingly use or employ any instrument or procedure” upon a pregnant woman with the “specific intent of causing or abetting the termination of the life of an unborn human being.”¹⁵ Violation of this ban carries criminal, professional, and civil penalties. Because this ban does not use the term “abortion” in explaining what conduct is prohibited, it is unclear whether the exceptions set forth in the 2022 trigger bans, including the exception for ectopic pregnancies, apply to this ban. This ban is subject to the same ongoing legal challenge referenced above.

Other Bans: Louisiana has not repealed other laws related to abortion. Louisiana law retains gestational bans that prohibit care when a fetal heartbeat can be detected,¹⁶ at twenty-two weeks LMP,¹⁷ and post-viability.¹⁸ State law prohibits medication abortion,¹⁹ and abortions after twenty-two weeks LMP sought for reasons of disability.²⁰ Louisiana law continues to include requirements that pregnant people who seek abortion care must undergo a mandatory seventy-two hour waiting period; counseling; and an ultrasound;²¹ prohibitions on public funding,²² and private insurance coverage.²³ It continues to require that a young person under 18 have a parent, legal guardian,²⁴ or judge in the young person’s parish²⁵ consent to their abortion.

Louisiana law also generally prohibits both dilation and evacuation (“D&E”) procedures²⁶ and intact D&E procedures (sometimes called D&X procedures), though such procedures may be used if they are “necessary to prevent [a] serious health risk” to the patient.²⁷ The statute defines “serious health risk” as a determination that, “in reasonable medical judgment[,] the mother has a condition that so complicates her medical condition that it necessitates the abortion of her pregnancy to avert her death or to avert serious risk of substantial and irreversible physical impairment of a major bodily function, not including psychological or emotional conditions.”²⁸ The definition of “serious health risk” is thus slightly different from the similar exception to Louisiana’s abortion bans, detailed below.²⁹ However, because the D&E ban refers to “dismemberment abortions,” incorporating the definition of the term “abortion” as used in the 2022 trigger bans, a procedure that does not fall into the definition of “abortion” under Louisiana law is not governed by the D&E ban. Therefore, in addition to instances of “serious medical risk” described above, a provider may lawfully use D&E procedures if relying on one of the exceptions to Louisiana’s abortion bans, discussed below.

Exceptions to Abortion Bans

As stated above, Louisiana law excludes the following categories of pregnancy termination from the legal definition of “abortion,” meaning they are not criminalized by Louisiana’s abortion bans: miscarriage management; termination of ectopic pregnancies; abortions to prevent death or “serious, permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ;” and abortions of “medically futile” pregnancies. Louisiana does not have exceptions for rape or incest, and the state legislature rejected proposed legislation to create these exceptions.³⁰

Miscarriage Management: Louisiana law generally allows for miscarriage care with certain limitations. Louisiana law defines “miscarriage” or “stillbirth” as the “spontaneous or accidental death of an unborn child, whether the death occurred in the womb or in the process of birth.”³¹ The law notes that the “death” of a fetus is indicated by lack of signs of breathing or “any other evidence of life, such as beating of the heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles.”³²

The removal of a miscarriage is not an abortion, as long as there has been a diagnosis—certified in writing and via ultrasound—that the pregnancy has ended or is in the “unavoidable and untreatable process of ending.”³³ In the circumstances where the requirements for “miscarriage” are met and certified, uterine contents can be removed or delivered using medication, D&C, D&E or labor induction procedures.³⁴

After a miscarriage, an LDH-licensed health facility must notify a patient of their right to manage the disposition of fetal remains, but, if the patient makes no such request, there are no specific fetal tissue disposal requirements beyond generally applicable state law (discussed below).³⁵

Ectopic Pregnancies: Louisiana law excludes the following actions from the definition of abortion: the “removal of an ectopic pregnancy,” “use of methotrexate to treat an ectopic pregnancy,” “[a] medical procedure performed with the intention to save the life or preserve the health of an unborn child,” and “performance of a medical procedure necessary in good faith medical judgment or reasonable medical judgment to prevent the death or substantial risk of death to the pregnant woman due to a physical condition, or to prevent the serious, permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ of a pregnant woman.”³⁶ As a result, treatment of an ectopic pregnancy is lawful under the 2022 trigger bans. However, as explained above, the first trigger ban, passed in 2006, does not rely upon the same definition of abortion, so it is unclear whether the exceptions set forth in the 2022 trigger bans, including the exception for ectopic pregnancies, apply to the 2006 trigger ban.

Necessary to Prevent Death or Permanent Impairment: Though various medical exceptions are stated in different parts of the code, the more restrictive exception that applies to Louisiana’s criminal ban should govern provider behavior.³⁷

Louisiana law excludes from the definition of abortion procedures that are “necessary . . . to prevent the death or substantial risk of death to the pregnant woman due to a physical condition, or to prevent the serious, permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ of the pregnant woman.”³⁸ This exception does not require that the risk of death or permanent impairment of a life-sustaining organ be imminent. It does, however, require that the threat to the pregnant person’s health be permanent. “Life-sustaining organ” is not defined.

When performing an abortion under this exception, a physician does not need to comply with the informed consent and 72-hour delay requirements;³⁹ physicians need not perform an ultrasound to determine if the fetus is viable;⁴⁰ and a physician does not need the otherwise-required consent from a parent or legal guardian if the patient is under 18.⁴¹

“Medically Futile” Pregnancies: Louisiana law does not consider the “removal of an unborn child who is deemed to be medically futile” to be an abortion.⁴² “Medically futile” means that “the unborn child has a profound and irremediable congenital or chromosomal anomaly that is incompatible with sustaining life after birth.” The Louisiana Department of Health has promulgated a rule within the Louisiana Administrative Code that establishes an “exclusive” list of conditions deemed

“medically futile.”⁴³ The list includes 26 conditions, including but not limited to anencephaly, craniorachischisis, trisomy 13, 16, 28, and 22, as well as a “catch-all” provision to accommodate certain conditions not listed. To use the “catch-all” provision, an assessment of medical futility must be certified by two physicians and recorded in the patient’s medical record.⁴⁴ The full list of conditions can be found at this link and is also reproduced in the references at the end of this document.⁴⁵

EMTALA

A federal law called the Emergency Medical Treatment & Labor Act (EMTALA) requires emergency abortion care in some cases. EMTALA requires the emergency departments of all Medicare-participating hospitals (which is most hospitals), to provide medical screening⁴⁶ and stabilizing medical treatment to patients experiencing a medical emergency condition,⁴⁷ including patients in labor or with emergency pregnancy complications.⁴⁸ Under the EMTALA statute, “to stabilize” means to provide medical treatment necessary to ensure, “within reasonable medical probability, that no material deterioration of the condition is likely.”⁴⁹ Patients can be transferred to a different hospital once they are stable or if certain conditions are met such as the medical benefits of transfer outweigh the increased risks to the patient. Where a hospital transfers a patient without first stabilizing them, the hospital still must provide “the medical treatment within its capacity which minimizes the risks to the individual’s health”⁵⁰ EMTALA defines medical emergency to include “acute symptoms of sufficient severity (including severe pain) such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in—(i) placing the health of the individual (or, with respect to a pregnant woman, the health of the woman or her unborn child) in serious jeopardy, (ii) serious impairment to bodily functions, or (iii) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.”⁵¹ For pregnant patients, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (“HHS”) guidance says that EMTALA includes, but is not limited to: “ectopic pregnancy, complications of pregnancy loss, or emergent hypertensive disorders, such as preeclampsia with severe features.”⁵²

HHS issued guidance after Roe v. Wade was overturned emphasizing that stabilizing treatment required by EMTALA could include abortion care if the examining physician or other qualified medical personnel determines that such treatment is required to stabilize a patient experiencing an emergency medical condition, including a condition that is “likely or certain to become emergent without stabilizing treatment.”⁵³ The guidance reiterates that if EMTALA requires the provision of abortion care, then EMTALA trumps any state law prohibiting or restricting access to abortion. A federal appeals court has affirmed a lower court decision that temporarily blocked federal enforcement of this guidance in Texas, but the practical effect of that ruling is unclear, as the medical emergency exception to Texas’s abortion bans purports to cover the same kind of patients as those contemplated by the EMTALA guidance.⁵⁴ Moreover, a district court in Idaho has held that EMTALA trumps the narrower state law that only permits abortion if the patient’s life is in danger, but the U.S. Supreme Court has blocked that decision while it considers the case, and a decision is expected in June 2024.⁵⁵ Furthermore, HHS recently cited hospitals in Kansas and Missouri for violating EMTALA by failing to provide abortion care to a patient with preterm premature rupture of membranes (“PPROM”).⁵⁶

Other Federal Laws & Professional Guidelines

In addition to EMTALA, hospitals and/or medical providers are required to abide by the following:

Conditions of Participation in Medicare and Medicaid (COP): The federal COP regulations require hospitals that participate in Medicare and Medicaid to inform patients of their rights in advance of furnishing or discontinuing care which include: the right to be informed of their health status, be involved in care planning and treatment, and participate in the development of their plan of care.⁵⁷

Protection Against Discrimination in Employment: The federal law known as the Church Amendments prohibits hospitals that receive certain federal funds from discriminating against health care providers who participate or are willing to participate in abortion care or sterilization procedures.⁵⁸

Medical Malpractice: While this document does not detail state-specific medical malpractice law, medical providers should be aware that they risk liability under state medical malpractice law for failing to provide pregnant patients with the standard of care.⁵⁹

Resident Training: The Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) requires that accredited programs provide access to training in the provision of abortion.⁶⁰ The federal law known as the Coats-Snowe Amendment both protects medical professionals in learning to provide abortion, and limits the government’s ability to penalize programs or institutions that fail to comply with ACGME requirements.⁶¹

Documentation & Reporting

Generally, state law does not require documentation of irrelevant or non-medical information in patient charts. Nor does it explicitly require reporting to law enforcement patients who receive abortions out of state or self-manage their own abortion.⁶² Some hospitals may impose additional documentation requirements for abortions performed as medical emergencies, including attestations by multiple physicians and/or approvals by an ethical review board. While intended to insulate the hospital from liability, these are not legal requirements.

The only abortion-specific documentation and reporting requirements are:

Abortion Reporting: All abortions shall be reported to the vital records registry within fifteen days by the person in charge of the institution where the abortion was performed. If the abortion was performed outside an institution, the physician in attendance at or immediately after delivery shall prepare and file the report.⁶³

Miscarriage Management Documentation: When a physician performs a procedure to treat a miscarriage, the doctor must certify in writing in the patient’s medical record, along with the results of an ultrasound test, that the pregnancy had ended or was in the “unavoidable and untreatable process of ending.”⁶⁴

Medical Futility Documentation & Reporting: When a physician terminates a pregnancy deemed “medically futile,” the diagnosis of medical futility must be a judgment certified by two physicians and recorded in the patient’s medical record.⁶⁵ After the procedure, which must take place in a licensed ambulatory surgical center or hospital, the physician must submit an “individual abortion report” that includes appropriate evidence of the certified diagnosis.⁶⁶ The requirements for an individual abortion include information such as the type of abortion procedure, reason for the abortion, and complications by type.⁶⁷ All abortion reports should be submitted to the Louisiana Department of Health within thirty days after the date of the procedure.⁶⁸

Complication Reporting: Complications from abortion may also need to be reported in a complication report if a physician provides post-abortion care.⁶⁹ This reporting requirement does not apply to any non-physician providers who treat abortion complications. Complication reports require the date of the abortion, the name and address of the facility where the abortion was performed, the nature of the abortion complication, and the name and address of the facility where the post-abortion care was provided.⁷⁰ All complication reports should be submitted to the Louisiana Department of Health within thirty days after the date of the completion of post-abortion care.⁷¹ “Complication” is not defined.

The statute defining abortion explicitly directs providers to fill out abortion report forms in instances of medical futility. Thus, complications following a termination performed in an instance of medical futility must likely also be reported. However, other abortion care—including treatment for ectopic pregnancies and miscarriages or performing an abortion to preserve the life of the pregnant person—do not contain this explicit requirement to fill out an abortion report form. Because they are outside the statutory definition of abortion, they may not require complication reporting.

The complication reporting law requires all physicians that treat a patient for post-abortion care to submit a complication report, irrespective of how the patient accessed the abortion or who provided it. The statute may also require physicians to report when they provide “post-abortion care” after self-managed abortion (SMA). However, the reporting statute does not require physicians to disclose patients’ names, and reports are made only to the Department of Health, not any law enforcement agency. No complication report should need to identify an abortion as being self-managed.

“Severe Adverse Event” Reporting: If a pregnancy is terminated using abortion medications and the physician knows that the patient experienced a “serious adverse event,” as defined by the MedWatch Reporting System, during or after the use of the drug, the physician must report the event to the FDA through the MedWatch Reporting System within three days of learning about the event.⁷²

Fetal Death Reporting: Louisiana law requires the reporting of each “spontaneous fetal death of twenty complete weeks gestation or more, calculated from the date [the] last normal menstrual period began to the date of delivery, or a weight of three hundred fifty grams or more.”⁷³ The report must be made to the vital records registry “or as otherwise directed by the state registrar” within five days of delivery.⁷⁴ If the dead fetus is delivered “in an institution, the person in charge of the institution or his or her designated representative shall prepare and file the spontaneous fetal death (stillbirth) certificate.”⁷⁵ Additionally, a medical certificate must be completed, signed, and provided to a funeral director, if applicable, within 24 hours after the death by the physician in charge of the fetus’s care.⁷⁶

Other Mandatory Reporting: All other general mandatory reporting to the Department of Children’s Services, local law enforcement, etc., also applies for abortion patients.⁷⁷ This includes reporting of sexual abuse of young people, child abuse, and vulnerable adult abuse.

Electronic Medical Records: Many electronic medical record systems (EMRs) allow healthcare providers to securely share patient records across healthcare institutions.⁷⁸ While EMRs have settings that allow patients to choose how and when their records are shared, hospital systems often instead use their EMR’s default settings that widely share patient records. Though often done for continuity of care purposes, these settings may put abortion providers and patients (or patients obtaining other sensitive care) at risk, and many patients do not know their records are shared in this way.⁷⁹ We encourage you to discuss alternative settings with your institution’s compliance officers, counsel, and/or technology officers, who may be able to offer customized solutions.⁸⁰

Counseling & Referral

Speech about abortion is legal in Louisiana. Medical professionals in Louisiana can thus (1) provide accurate options counseling, including about abortion; and (2) refer patients to medical providers in states where abortion is legal. Louisiana’s ban on abortion advertising has been permanently enjoined and is not in effect.⁸¹

There is a Louisiana-specific note of caution, however, as to a statute that prohibits anyone employed by the state of Louisiana or by any public or private social service agency that receives any form of governmental assistance from requiring or recommending that any woman have an abortion.⁸² The prohibition on recommending an abortion does not apply to a licensed doctor acting to save or preserve the life of the pregnant person.⁸³

Medication Abortion

Definition and Application: Louisiana law defines “abortion-inducing drug” to include “any drug or chemical, or any combination of drugs or chemicals, or any other substance when used with the intent to cause an abortion, including but not limited to RU-486, the Mifeprex regimen, misoprostol (Cytotec), or methotrexate.”⁸⁴

Prohibitions: Louisiana has two statutes targeting the provision of abortion medications by mail:

- Criminal abortion by means of abortion-inducing drug: A criminal abortion by means of abortion medications is committed “when a person knowingly causes an abortion to occur by means of delivering, dispensing, distributing, or providing a pregnant woman with an abortion-inducing drug” when the person administering the drug is not a physician licensed in the state of Louisiana. (Note: the administration of abortion-inducing drugs by physicians licensed in the state of Louisiana is still largely illegal, it is just not criminalized by this statute).⁸⁵ The penalties for violating this statute include imprisonment from one to five years and/or a fine of $5,000 to $50,000. The penalties increase if the criminal abortion by abortion-inducing drug results in death or serious bodily injury of the pregnant person and increase again if the injured pregnant person is under eighteen.

- Ban on sale and delivery: Louisiana law states that “no abortion-inducing drug may be sold, prescribed, dispensed, distributed, or delivered” in Louisiana.⁸⁶ It further states that delivery of abortion-inducing drugs “to a person in Louisiana by mail-order, courier, or as a result of a sale made via the internet” is “strictly prohibited.”⁸⁷ A violation of the prohibition on sales and delivery may result in a fine of up to $1000, up to six months’ imprisonment, or both.

Both statutes allow for prescribing and dispensing potential abortion medications for lawful medical reasons not intended to cause an abortion.⁸⁸ In these cases, the prescriber must write a “diagnosis code” on the prescription that clearly indicates that the prescription is not intended to cause an abortion.⁸⁹ Any act by a pharmacist or pharmacy related to filling such a prescription—as confirmed by the diagnosis code written on the prescription by the prescriber—is not subject to liability.⁹⁰

Neither statute applies to acts or omissions by a pregnant person regarding her own embryo or fetus, including possessing for her own consumption or consuming an abortion-inducing drug.⁹¹

There are only a few cases where abortion medications can be legally administered for the purpose of terminating a pregnancy (e.g., in instances of medical futility, to prevent the death of a pregnant woman, or the use of methotrexate to treat an ectopic pregnancy). These are each outside of the statutory definition of abortion and so the statutory restrictions in place that require medication abortion be administered in the presence of the physician who prescribed the drug may no longer apply.⁹²

Disposition of Fetal Tissue Remains

Louisiana law requires that all embryonic and fetal tissue remains resulting from an induced abortion are disposed of by interment or cremation.⁹³ This does not apply to medication abortions when the patient passes pregnancy tissue outside the medical facility.⁹⁴ Additionally, as the only legal terminations under the Louisiana ban—instances of medical futility, to preserve the life of the pregnant person, to treat ectopic pregnancies, and to treat miscarriages—are outside of the statutory definition of abortion, the statutory restrictions requiring interment or cremation may not apply.⁹⁵

Louisiana has a total prohibition on buying, selling, and otherwise transferring fetal tissue remains resulting from an induced abortion.⁹⁶ After an induced abortion, no person may “remove” any “tissue” for any purpose, including research. However, as mentioned above, this restriction may not apply in instances outside of the statutory definition of “abortion.”⁹⁷

Neither of the above provisions apply to fetal and embryonic tissue remains resulting from natural miscarriage or stillbirth,⁹⁸ though patients may arrange for the final disposition of miscarriage remains if they so choose.⁹⁹ Neither provision puts any requirements on patients.

⁷⁹ For example, if a patient travels from a ban state to an access state for abortion care, or obtains an abortion in the ban state under an exception, then later obtains any type of healthcare at a different provider that uses the same EMR, the patient's records may be automatically shared with the second provider. If the second provider believes that the care violated the state's abortion ban, they may report it to authorities.

⁸⁰ In the past year, states and the federal government have taken steps to address these vulnerabilities, specifically for abortion and gender-affirming care. Maryland and California have passed bills that restrict disclosure of abortion-related records and require EMRs to develop tools to limit or prohibit such disclosure. As these laws are implemented, the landscape for how electronic abortion records are handled may change.

⁹⁵ This is true even though this provision lives in Title 40 of the Louisiana code, and the definition of abortion lives in Title 14, as Title 40 explicitly states that “unless a different meaning clearly appears in the context, the terms, whether singular or plural, have the same meaning as the definitions provided in R.S. 14:87.1.” LA.
