

Know Your State's Abortion Laws

A Guide for Medical Professionals

OKLAHOMA

Since Roe v. Wade was overturned in June 2022, medical providers across the country have struggled to understand their state's abortion laws, which contain undefined terms and non-medical language.

Fear and confusion throughout the medical community has led some hospitals to adopt policies that are overly strict or burdensome, causing patients to be denied care in emergencies. While the law remains in flux and some questions have no clear answers, this document aims to provide clarification, where possible, of what conduct is still permitted in your state. Know what your state's law does and does not require, so you can advocate for yourself and your patients.

Key Takeaways

Providing contraception, including emergency contraception, is legal.

Providing medical care for ectopic pregnancies and pregnancies with no cardiac activity is legal.

Providing information about how to obtain a legal abortion in another state is legal.

Abortion is prohibited under Oklahoma law unless the abortion is necessary to “preserve [the] life” of the patient.

The Oklahoma Supreme Court has held that the Oklahoma Constitution protects a limited right to abortion in life-preserving situations, and clarified that clinicians may provide abortions without waiting until the patient is in an active medical emergency if the life-threatening risk is sufficiently likely.

Definition of Abortion & Contraception

ABORTION

The word “abortion” is defined in various ways in Oklahoma law,<sup>1</sup> but generally, the definition applies to “the use or prescription of any instrument, medicine, drug, or any other substance or device” to terminate pregnancy.<sup>2</sup> Although the language defining abortion varies, the legal consensus is that it excludes the “removal” of a fetus that is “dead” (generally understood to mean there is no cardiac activity present in the embryo or fetus) and management of an ectopic pregnancy (including use of methotrexate and surgical removal).<sup>3</sup> This means that treatment for miscarriage where there is no cardiac activity (including medications, D&C, D&E, labor induction) is not an abortion under Oklahoma law and thus is not prohibited.

Although nonbinding, the Oklahoma Attorney General issued guidance on August 31, 2022 that confirms this consensus: “Oklahoma abortion prohibitions do not apply to unintentional miscarriages and miscarriage management (such as the removal of a dead child), ectopic pregnancies and treatments, in vitro fertilization (IVF) and other fertility treatments, or uses or prescription of contraception, including Plan B.”<sup>4</sup>

With respect to self-managed abortion, it is legal for providers to give medical care during or after a self-managed abortion provided there is no cardiac activity, or if the patient is experiencing a complication that would qualify as a threat to the patient’s life under the exception to Oklahoma’s abortion ban described below. There is no specific crime of self-managed abortion in Oklahoma law, and Oklahoma explicitly repealed its criminal prohibition on self-managed abortion after Roe was overturned, so a pregnant person cannot be convicted of a violation of Oklahoma’s abortion bans for self-managing their abortion.<sup>5</sup>

CONTRACEPTION

Contraception is not illegal in any state in the country, including Oklahoma.<sup>6</sup>

Abortion Bans

Oklahoma presently has three abortion bans in effect: (1) the pre-Roe ban, which is a total ban; (2) a post-viability ban; and (3) a 22-week ban.<sup>7</sup> Oklahoma enacted three other bans after Roe was overturned, but each has been struck down by the Oklahoma Supreme Court.<sup>8</sup> There are a number of other bans and restrictions currently subject to injunctions and therefore not in effect.<sup>9</sup> The only bans currently in effect are:

Pre-Roe Ban: The pre-Roe ban was originally blocked after Roe was decided in 1973, but it was revived by a “trigger” law when Roe was overturned in 2022.<sup>10</sup> The ban prohibits “administer[ing] to any woman . . . prescrib[ing] for any woman, or advis[ing] or procur[ing] any woman to take any medicine, drug or substance, or us[ing] or employ[ing] any instrument, or other means whatever, with intent thereby to procure the miscarriage of such woman, unless the same is necessary to preserve her life.”<sup>11</sup> Violating the pre-Roe ban is a felony, and the penalty is “imprisonment in the State Penitentiary for not less than two (2) years nor more than five (5) years.”<sup>12</sup> In March 2023, the Oklahoma Supreme Court declared in Oklahoma Call for Reproductive Justice v. Drummond (“OCRJ v. Drummond”) that the Oklahoma Constitution protects a fundamental right to an abortion to preserve a patient’s life, and upheld the pre-Roe ban as constitutional by concluding that it adequately protected patient life under this standard (see below).<sup>13</sup>

Post-Viability Ban: Oklahoma also has a post-viability ban on the books, which presumes viability at 24 weeks LMP, and has an exception where “abortion is necessary to prevent the death of the pregnant woman or to prevent impairment to her health.”<sup>14</sup> Like the pre-Roe ban, this exception appears to be consistent with OCRJ v. Drummond, meaning that physicians can provide abortions where necessary to protect patient life. There are some requirements about personnel if the fetus is beyond 24 weeks, but these are waivable in a life-threatening situation.<sup>15</sup>

22-Week Ban: Finally, there is a ban on abortion after 22 weeks LMP (or 20 weeks post-fertilization as described in the statute), “unless, in reasonable medical judgment, [the patient] has a condition which so complicates her medical condition as to necessitate the abortion of her pregnancy to avert her death or to avert serious risk of substantial and irreversible physical impairment of a major bodily function, not including psychological or emotional conditions.”<sup>16</sup> This exception also appears to be consistent with OCRJ v. Drummond.

Exception to Abortion Bans to “Preserve [the] Life” of the Patient

The only exception to the pre-Roe ban is for an abortion “necessary to preserve [the] life” of the patient.<sup>17</sup> (The post-viability ban and 22-Week ban effectively have the same exception, see above.) Oklahoma has no exceptions for rape, incest, or fetal diagnoses unless the patient is also experiencing a threat to their life. The Oklahoma Supreme Court’s recent decision upholding the pre-Roe ban as constitutional, however, established a limited constitutional right to abortion to preserve a patient’s life and provided a useful definition of the scope of the “life” exception to its abortion bans.

The Court detailed that a patient “has an inherent right to choose to terminate her pregnancy if at any point in the pregnancy, the woman’s physician has determined to a reasonable degree of medical certainty or probability that the continuation of the pregnancy will endanger the woman’s life due to the pregnancy itself or due to a medical condition that the woman is either currently suffering from or likely to suffer from during the pregnancy.” The Court clarified that “[a]bsolute certainty” about the life-threatening risk “is not required, however, mere possibility or speculation is insufficient.” The Court emphasized that a patient does not need to be in “actual and present danger in order for her to obtain a medically necessary abortion” if the “harmful condition is known or probable to occur in the future.”<sup>18</sup>

This language means that the exception appears to apply where:

- Pregnancy will inevitably result in a life-threatening risk like preterm premature rupture of membranes (“PPROM”) or the treatment of a molar or partial molar pregnancy.
- A life-threatening situation is “probable”: e.g. hypertension where the physician has determined that it is probable that the patient will face a life-threatening emergency.
- The life-threatening medical condition is not caused by pregnancy, but the threat is “due to a medical condition that the woman is either currently suffering from or likely to suffer from during the pregnancy.”<sup>19</sup> This could extend to pre-existing conditions such as hypertension, diabetes, or cancer.

The physician must be able to rely on their judgment to make a determination about a life-preserving abortion “to a reasonable degree of medical certainty or probability.”<sup>20</sup>

Other Abortion Restrictions

While not the focus of this document, Oklahoma has many other laws<sup>21</sup> that restrict abortion, including: extensive mandatory biased counseling requirements, a 72-hour mandatory delay,<sup>22</sup> and parental notice<sup>23</sup> and parental consent for young people under eighteen.<sup>24</sup> All of these laws have “medical emergency” exceptions relating to abortions that must be provided “immediately” (excluding emergencies due to psychiatric conditions). Specifically, “medical emergency” is defined as: “the existence of any physical condition, not including any emotional, psychological, or mental condition, which a reasonably prudent physician, with knowledge of the case and treatment possibilities with respect to the medical conditions involved, would determine necessitates the immediate abortion of the pregnancy of the female to avert her death or to avert substantial and irreversible impairment of a major bodily function arising from continued pregnancy.”<sup>25</sup> Thus, if a patient is in an active medical emergency, a physician can provide an abortion without complying with these other state restrictions. The physician must, however, inform the patient before the abortion, if possible, “of the medical indications supporting the physician's judgment that an abortion is necessary to avert her death or that a delay will create serious risk of substantial and irreversible impairment of a major bodily function.”<sup>26</sup> The physician is also still required to comply with post-abortion documentation and reporting obligations (see below).

If the patient is not in an active medical emergency, but their life is endangered by probable future harm under OCRJ v. Drummond, a physician may need to comply with these other restrictions. If you or your institution has questions about these or other requirements, we encourage you to reach out to the Abortion Defense Network, linked at the end of this document.

EMTALA

A federal law called the Emergency Medical Treatment & Labor Act (EMTALA) requires emergency abortion care in some cases. EMTALA requires Medicare-participating hospitals with emergency departments (which is most hospitals), to provide medical screening<sup>27</sup> and stabilizing medical treatment to individuals experiencing an emergency medical condition,<sup>28</sup> including people in labor or with emergency pregnancy complications.<sup>29</sup> Under the EMTALA statute, “to stabilize” means to provide medical treatment “as may be necessary” to ensure, “within reasonable medical probability, that no material deterioration of the condition is likely.”<sup>30</sup> A person experiencing an emergency medical condition can only be transferred to a different hospital once they are stable or if certain conditions are met such as the medical benefits of transfer outweigh the increased risks to the person experiencing the medical emergency.<sup>31</sup> Even where a hospital is permitted to transfer such a person without first stabilizing them, the hospital still must provide “the medical treatment within its capacity which minimizes the risks to the individual's health . . . .”<sup>32</sup> EMTALA defines medical emergency to include “acute symptoms of sufficient severity (including severe pain) such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in—(i) placing the health of the individual (or, with respect to a pregnant woman, the health of the woman or her unborn child) in serious jeopardy, (ii) serious impairment to bodily functions, or (iii) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.”<sup>33</sup> The stabilizing treatment required by EMTALA can include abortion care in certain circumstances.

HHS reaffirmed these requirements in guidance issued after Roe v. Wade was overturned. That guidance emphasizes that stabilizing treatment required by EMTALA could include abortion care if the examining physician or other qualified medical personnel determines that such treatment is required to stabilize a patient experiencing an emergency medical condition, including a condition that is “likely or certain to become emergent without stabilizing treatment.”<sup>34</sup> The guidance made clear those conditions might include, but are not limited to: “ectopic pregnancy, complications of pregnancy loss, or emergent hypertensive disorders, such as preeclampsia with severe features.”<sup>35</sup> The guidance reiterates that if EMTALA requires the provision of abortion care, then EMTALA expressly preempts any state law prohibiting or restricting access to abortion.<sup>36</sup> Indeed, HHS has recently cited hospitals in Kansas, Missouri and Florida for violating EMTALA by failing to provide abortion care to a patient with preterm premature rupture of membranes (“PPROM”).<sup>37</sup> An EMTALA complaint has been submitted on behalf of a patient with a partial molar pregnancy that was denied care in Oklahoma.<sup>38</sup>

Notwithstanding EMTALA’s clear requirements with respect to emergency abortion, there is ongoing litigation relating to attempts by state officials in Idaho and Texas to restrict hospitals from complying with their federal legal obligations. In 2022, a federal district court in Idaho issued a preliminary injunction ensuring that Idaho’s abortion ban could not be enforced to prohibit health-saving emergency abortions required under EMTALA. While that injunction was temporarily stayed by the U.S. Supreme Court, that stay was lifted in June 2024 and the preliminary injunction restored while the case continues in the lower courts.<sup>39</sup> In July 2024, following that order, HHS issued a statement reiterating that EMTALA requires hospitals to provide emergency abortion care when it is necessary stabilizing treatment.<sup>40</sup> Meanwhile, HHS has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review a Fifth Circuit decision that affirmed a lower court decision temporarily blocking federal enforcement of HHS’ guidance in Texas. HHS has petitioned the Supreme Court to reverse the preliminary injunction.<sup>41</sup> The government’s petition will be considered by the Supreme Court in the next term.

Other Federal Laws & Professional Guidelines

In addition to EMTALA, hospitals and/or medical providers are required to abide by the following:

Conditions of Participation in Medicare and Medicaid (COP): The federal COP regulations require hospitals that participate in Medicare and Medicaid to inform patients of their rights in advance of furnishing or discontinuing care which include: the right to be informed of their health status, be involved in care planning and treatment, and participate in the development of their plan of care.<sup>42</sup>

Protection Against Discrimination in Employment: The federal law known as the Church Amendments prohibits hospitals that receive certain federal funds from discriminating against health care providers who participate or are willing to participate in abortion care or sterilization procedures.<sup>43</sup>

Medical Malpractice: While this document does not detail state-specific medical malpractice law, medical providers should be aware that they risk liability under state medical malpractice law for failing to provide pregnant patients with the standard of care.<sup>44</sup>

Resident Training: The Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) requires that accredited programs provide access to training in the provision of abortion.<sup>45</sup> The federal law known as the Coats-Snowe Amendment both protects medical professionals in learning to provide abortion, and limits the government's ability to penalize programs or institutions that fail to comply with ACGME requirements.<sup>46</sup>

Documentation & Reporting

Generally, state law does not require documentation of irrelevant or non-medical information in patient charts. Nor does it require reporting patients who receive abortions out of state or self-manage their own abortion to law enforcement.<sup>47</sup> The abortion-specific documentation and reporting requirements are:

Documentation:

- 24 weeks LMP or beyond: The fetus is presumed viable under Oklahoma law, and a physician must either “certify in writing the precise medical criteria upon which he has determined that the particular unborn child is not viable before an abortion may be performed or induced” or certify in writing that in their “best medical judgment the abortion is necessary to prevent the death of the pregnant woman or to prevent an impairment to her health.”<sup>48</sup>

The physician must “further certify in writing the medical indications for such abortion and the probable health consequences if the abortion is not performed or induced.”<sup>49</sup> “The physician who shall perform or induce an abortion upon a pregnant woman after such time as her unborn child has become viable shall utilize the available method or technique of abortion most likely to preserve the life and health of the unborn child, unless he shall first certify in writing that in his best medical judgment such method or technique shall present a significantly greater danger to the life or health of the pregnant woman than another available method or technique.”<sup>50</sup>

- Even if before 24 Weeks LMP: Under OCRJ v.

Drummond, it may be advisable to document the basis for determining that an abortion is necessary to preserve the life of the patient. For example, it may be helpful to describe the patient's condition and why an abortion is “certainly” or “probably” necessary to “preserve” the patient's “life.”

- If the provider must comply with the 72-hour waiting period: Forms and certifications from the patient must be retained in the medical record.<sup>51</sup> There are also medical record requirements for young people under eighteen.<sup>52</sup> Physicians must also document gestational age.<sup>53</sup> “All abortion facilities and hospitals in which abortions are performed shall also keep certifications of medical necessity, certifications of nonviability, certifications of nonavailability, abortion reports and complication reports . . . for a period of not less than seven (7) years.”<sup>54</sup>

Some hospitals may impose additional documentation requirements for abortions performed as medical emergencies, including attestations by multiple physicians and/or approvals by an ethical review board. While intended to insulate the hospital from liability, these are not legal requirements.

Abortion Reporting: Oklahoma also requires extensive abortion reporting, including reports of each abortion,<sup>55</sup> special reporting for any abortions beyond 20 weeks,<sup>56</sup> reporting of aggregate figures for patients receiving mandatory biased counseling,<sup>57</sup> and special reporting for young people under eighteen.<sup>58</sup> Key forms can be found on the Oklahoma Department of Health website.<sup>59</sup>

Complication Reporting: Complications from abortion must also be reported to the state,<sup>60</sup> and this form is also available on the Oklahoma Department of Health website.<sup>61</sup> A complication report must be filed no more than 60 days following the complication. Importantly, the list of contemplated “complications” is extremely broad, including aspects that many providers would not deem to be “complications,” such as “failed termination” and “incomplete termination” requiring re-evacuation.<sup>62</sup>

Fetal Death Reporting: Oklahoma law requires that at or after 12 weeks of gestation “fetal death certificates” be reported to the State Registrar within 3 days of delivery, either by a funeral director or the physician “or other person” in attendance at the delivery.<sup>63</sup> “Fetal Death” is defined as “death prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from its mother of a product of human conception after the fetus has advanced to or beyond the twelfth week of uterogestation.” Abortions are not reportable as fetal deaths.<sup>64</sup>

Other Mandatory Reporting: All other general mandatory reporting to the Department of Family and Protective Services, local law enforcement, etc., also applies for abortion patients.<sup>65</sup> This includes reporting of sexual abuse of young people, child abuse, and vulnerable adult abuse.<sup>66</sup>

Electronic Medical Records: Many electronic medical record systems (EMRs) allow healthcare providers to securely share patient records across healthcare institutions.<sup>67</sup> While EMRs have settings that allow patients to choose how and when their records are shared, hospital systems often instead use their EMR’s default settings that widely share patient records. Though often done for continuity of care purposes, these settings may put abortion providers and patients (or patients obtaining other sensitive care) at risk, and many patients do not know their records are shared in this way.<sup>68</sup>

The federal government has taken steps to address this concern by issuing a new HIPAA rule, effective June 25, 2024.<sup>69</sup> The rule prohibits the use or disclosure of protected health information (PHI) if sought to conduct a criminal, civil, or administrative investigation into or impose liability on any person for the mere act of seeking, obtaining, providing, or facilitating lawful reproductive healthcare, or identifying any person for these purposes.<sup>70</sup> A provider who receives a request for disclosure of PHI potentially related to reproductive care must obtain a signed attestation from the requestor that the request is not for a prohibited purpose.<sup>71</sup> The attestation is required when the request is for: law enforcement purposes, disclosures to coroners and medical examiners, judicial and administrative proceedings, and health oversight activities.<sup>72</sup> If the abortion care—self-managed or otherwise—was provided by someone else, a provider is allowed to assume the care was provided lawfully unless 1) the patient tells them otherwise or 2) the attestation provides evidence of unlawfully provided care.<sup>73</sup>

The new rule only applies to healthcare providers who are subject to HIPAA. Separate from HIPAA, interoperability rules may apply when a healthcare provider uses EMRs.<sup>74</sup> Because of this, we encourage you to discuss alternative EMR settings and information blocking exceptions with your institution’s compliance officers, counsel, and/or technology officers, who may be able to offer customized solutions.<sup>75</sup>

Counseling & Referral

Speech about abortion is legal in Oklahoma. Medical professionals in Oklahoma can thus (1) provide accurate options counseling, including about abortion; and (2) refer patients to medical providers in states where abortion is legal. The Pre-Roe ban criminalizes certain “advising” about abortion, but this does not apply to any lawful abortions, such as abortions available out of state. This was confirmed by the Attorney General’s guidance that this provision can only be applied to advising regarding an “unlawful abortion.”<sup>76</sup> That guidance also emphasized that enforcement of Oklahoma’s abortion bans must “take great care to avoid infringing on constitutional speech rights,” including advocacy in favor of abortion.<sup>77</sup>

The Oklahoma Attorney General, however, has made concerning representations regarding the legality of referring patients for lawful abortions out of state in legal flings in its litigation over Title X funding. The state of Oklahoma sued the federal government after the federal government withdrew Oklahoma’s Title X funding because Oklahoma’s program refuses to refer for lawful out of state care.<sup>78</sup> Nevertheless, the guidance has not been withdrawn, and such an interpretation of Oklahoma law would be unprecedented and likely violative of the First Amendment. Oklahoma has also taken no action, nor showed an intent, to prosecute anyone providing information about out of state care.

Medication Abortion

All of the requirements discussed in this document apply to both procedural and medication abortion.

While some states have additional laws that apply specifically to medication abortion, Oklahoma does not have any of these laws currently in effect.

Disposition of Fetal Tissue Remains

Oklahoma has general provisions that apply to the disposal of human tissue.<sup>79</sup> There are three additional requirements that may be implicated in abortion care. First, a physician who performs an abortion on a young person who is less than fourteen at the time of an abortion “shall preserve, in accordance with rules promulgated by the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, fetal tissue extracted during such abortion” and “shall submit the tissue to the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.”<sup>80</sup> Second, there is a prohibition on “sell[ing]” or “experiment[ing]” on fetal remains resulting from an abortion, but lawful autopsies are carved out.<sup>81</sup> Third, a “fetal death certificate” may be required after “delivery” of a fetus, which could apply to induction procedures.<sup>82</sup>

<sup>67</sup> For example, one EMR, Epic, uses a tool called Care Everywhere to securely share information between health care institutions (e.g., from one hospital system to another) and allows robust sharing within a single institution (e.g., a Texas hospital treating a patient may be able to see the patient’s records from an Illinois hospital within the same system).

<sup>68</sup> For example, if a patient travels from a ban state to an access state for abortion care, or obtains an abortion in the ban state under an exception, then later obtains any type of healthcare at a different provider that uses the same EMR, the patient’s records may be automatically shared with the second provider. If the second provider believes that the care violated the state’s abortion ban, they may report it to authorities.

<sup>69</sup> Although effective on June 25, 2024, compliance with this rule is not required until December 23, 2024, except for the applicable requirements for revising Notice of Policy Practices (as required by 45 CFR 164.520), which must be complied with by February 16, 2026.

Reg. 54662 (July 1, 2024) (amending 42 C.F.R. §§ 171.414, 425, 495). Not all healthcare providers are currently subject to the disincentives included in the 2024 rule. However, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) may apply disincentives to certain hospitals and merit-based incentive payment system (MIPS) eligible clinicians. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services intends to expand disincentives to other groups of health care providers in future rulemaking.

<sup>75</sup> In the past year, states and the federal government have taken steps to address these vulnerabilities, specifically for abortion and gender-affirming care. Maryland and California have passed bills that restrict disclosure of abortion-related records and require EMRs to develop tools to limit or prohibit such disclosure. As these laws are implemented, the landscape for how electronic abortion records are handled may change.
